Dr. Sonia Nieto
Professor Emerita in Language, Literacy & Culture
Department of Teacher Education and Curriculum Studies
College of Education at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst

Finding Joy in Teaching Students of Diverse Backgrounds: Culturally Responsive & Socially Just Practices in U.S. Classrooms

Friday, September 18, 2015
9:30 a.m.
Forum Hall, K-State Student Union

College of Education Students:
Earn 1.5 Professional Development Hours for attending

What does it take to be a culturally responsive teacher of all students? Given our increasingly diverse society, as well as an educational context largely defined by rigid accountability, standardization, and disrespect for teachers, this question is at the heart of what it takes for teachers – both novice and veteran – to thrive and be successful with students of all cultural, racial, and social backgrounds.

Additional Opportunity:
Book Signing
Thursday, September 17, 2015
4–5 p.m. – 21 Bluemont Hall

teaching is about power. That is why it must also be about social justice.”

Distinguished Educational Research Lecture Series 2015

coe.k-state.edu/research/ed-research-lecture.html